All the altcoins come with different or similar use cases and have been applied to different industries. Anyway, the block chain technology, on which cryptocurrency is built on, is used to make a substantial impact on the world.

Project Background

PROBLEM DESCRIPTION

The rapid growth of online cryptocurrency payment services is transforming the way people operate today. SECURITY THREATS

The ascent of web based shopping, computerized advertising and dependability plans brought about merchants putting away more buyer information that is of incentive to cyber hackers. As anyone might expect, breaks including loss of user's data from hacking or online spillage multiplied in one year only and that is in 2015/2016.

In light of every one of these issues, it is no big surprise that more than 69% of buyers search for sites showing trust images provided by Trustee etc. Appropriately posting these images on your site is neither simple, nor modest. In like manner, they're generally not present on new and energizing sites, for example, new companies attempting to raise capital, convey merchandise and further create items.

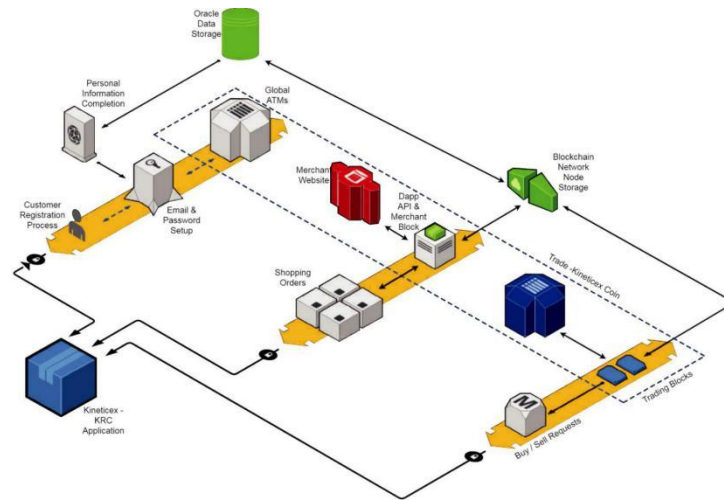

Few merchants have the assets and capacity to withstand the steady cyber-attack, and that outcomes in less and less trusted merchants on the web. Contortions to rivalry, online business and protection achieved by the ascent of digital wrongdoing are excessively incredible, making it impossible to disregard. Something should be noshed. Along these lines, we trust that Identity 2.0 could be a colossal positive development.

Our platform is the best alternative to the traditional banking systems.

STRUCTURAL DESIGN & TECHNOLOGY

GULF BITS COIN is designed on Tronscan, a block chain-based distributed computing system that allows smart contracts. The Tronscan block chain platform allows us to incorporate all the features of GULF BITS COIN into smart contracts. Smart contracts provide a means to validate transactions, and the Tronscan block chain reduces the chance of any attack on the coin and solidifies the security of the platform.

Our services are designed using Get (Go-Tronscan), a multipurpose command line tool running a complete Tronscan node executed in Go. GETH allows to engage in the Tronscan ecosystem as well as to mine ether, create contracts, engage in transactions and so on. It runs on a proprietary Linux server without RPC/HTTP open ports. The command line incorporating Get is regulated via the Tronscan network and the Node.js intermediary application.

The applications linked to the Tronscan block chain are constructed on True, a development environment, testing structure and asset pipeline for Tronscan. Tronscan True will be used for built-in smart contract assembling, linking, deployment and binary management, con grabble build pipeline with provision for custom build processes, and network management for deploying to several public & private networks.

The command line between the Tronscan block chain and the web-applications is regulated with the Web3.js framework, which is the Tronscan compatible JavaScript API for executing the Generic JSON RPC spec.

There is a communication layer between GETH and the front-end application, and it is executed with Node.js that deploys an event-driven, non-blocking I/O system for regulating communications between the users and GULF BITS COIN. IPCs (Internal Procedure Calls) allows communication between the Node.js application and GETH, both of which share the same server. The API of JSON-RPC, a stateless, light-weight Remote Procedure Call (RPC) protocol, allows communication using the Tronscan node. The execution of the front-end application is done with the AngularJS framework. Located on a separate server, this application communicates with the Intermediate Layer using Web Sockets and a REST API.
